This week at school!

- We will read a variety of nursery rhymes this week. These stories are passed down through generations, and are found across cultures, so they give us a sense of shared culture and community. Familiarity, language patterns, and rhythm and rhyme all contribute to making the rhymes fun to read aloud.
- This week will begin working with our poetry binder. Rhyming expands children's oral language abilities and develops phonological and phonemic awareness which is one of the best predictors of how well children will learn to read during the first two years of school instruction.
- In Math, students will see how each number in the counting sequence increases by one. We will also recognize and write the numeral 0 and understand that zero represents a group of no objects. Math vocabulary includes: more than, greater, less than, fewer.
- In Social Studies we will discuss kindness and ways to show kindness to each other.

- Our Scholastic book order is due by 9/11. You can order online by searching my name. (Let me know if you are having trouble with this). You can also choose books dedicated to babies through teens by searching through age level catalogs online.
- This week is a library book check out week; send your child to school with their library book on Tuesday.
- Our color study will begin this week. This week's feature color is red. Please have your child wear red on Friday (see color study letter for details).
- Please have your child practice zipping up their jacket independently. Many struggle with engaging the zipper. If the sleeves of their jacket tend to reverse when taking it off, teach them to pull the sleeves right side out.
- Check the back of your child's red folder each evening to see if behavior has impacted their day.
- Check our website to see our class in action.
